HOPEFUL FEELING ON STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 3 .- The recovery in prices of stocks last week was partly a correction of the excess into which the fecline ran at the end of the preceding week, just as that decline had been a reaction from the effects of undue manipulation in pushing the advanca.

The fresh advance was accompanied by a fair consensus of hopeful views of the business and financial prospects from various authorities, including the reputed leader of the organized market movement to advance stock prices this year. ment to advance stock prices this year.

Evidence of an improvement is more pronounced in the iron and steel and copper industry than in general trade; but confidence is strong in the reliability of those basic industries as an index of the trend of the whole.

With a prospective demand for raw steel in the latter part of the summer which promises to exceed capacity, and with the announcement that the United States Steel corporation is to appropriate $20,000,000 for improvements, the change from the present condition of complaint of over-capacity is brought out sharply. Demand for merchandise is pronounced moderate or sporty. Bank clearings, the country over, do not reflect marked expansion.

The restraint on business finds partial explanation in the agricultural conditions.

The restraint on business finds partial expianation in the agricultural conditions. The approach of July settlements abroad brings tightening money conditions. Public warnings have been issued by German financial authorities against undue extension of banking credits for speculation and the danger of collapse of a long-continued boom in industry.
